MAURITIUS SUGAR INDUSTRY RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Historical

The first plant of economic importance that was introduced in Mauritius by the Dutch was sugar cane in 1639. It was grown primarily for the production of arrack (an alcoholic beverage) but sugar was also manufactured in two processing plants by the end of the 17th century. In the early days of the French occupation (1715-1810), there was more interest in spices, cotton, indigo, coffee, foodcrops and animal husbandry than sugar cane. However, it was Mahé de La Bourdonnais, appointed Governor in 1735, who promoted the production of sugar cane and at the beginning of the 19th century, 3000 tonnes of sugar and 300 000 gallons of arrack were produced by 60 to 80 factories and distilleries. The sugar industry expanded under the British rule (1810-1968) and by 1862 production reached 150 000 tonnes and the number of factories increased to 259. This production however, stagnated until the end of the 19th century. The agricultural community had to face serious set backs : violent cyclones, pests and diseases and malaria which killed 10% of the population. These events led to the transformation of the sugar industry and the Chamber of Agriculture, founded in 1853, promoted organized research with the creation of the “Station Agronomique” in 1893 under the directorship of Mr Philippe Bonâme.

Later, in 1913, the Department of Agriculture, was created to broaden research into other crops and in animal production. In 1930, a Sugar Cane Research Station was formed within that Department to promote work on breeding, physiology and fertilization of sugar cane. While conducting research on crop and animal production, the Department of Agriculture continued to provide the sugar industry with specialized services, such as pathology, entomology and sugar technology.

The Mauritius Economic Commission of 1947-48 recommended that the sugar industry should finance and conduct its own research and experimentation. The Mauritius Sugar Industry Research Institute (MSIRI) was thus established by Ordinance No. 9 of 1953 “to promote by means of research and investigation the technical progress and efficiency of the sugar industry”. Under the guidance of Dr P O Wiehe, its first Director, who remained in office for fifteen years, the MSIRI soon earned a prominent place in the world of sugar cane research and in 1962 it hosted the XIth Congress of the International Society of Sugar Cane Technologists.

Organization and Structure

The MSIRI is a statutory body governed by an Executive Board of 10 members composed of representatives of government and of the sugar cane planting community. It is financed mainly out of a global cess on sugar borne by all cane growers. It is organized into research departments and currently employs 104 scientists and technicians, 13 administrative cadres and 135 supporting staff. In addition, contractual staff and labour are employed for specific projects.

Since 1992, the MSIRI Departments are grouped into four sectors, namely, Agronomy, Biology, Engineering, and Resource Management to include the research departments and the support services (see organization chart). The Board is responsible for policy matters, while the day to day running of the Institute is under the responsibility of the Director, assisted by Heads of Departments.

In addition to the Head Office at Réduit, there are three Experiment Stations at Belle Rive, Union Park, and Pamplemousses. The Mauritius Herbarium is affiliated with and is housed in the MSIRI.

The Library of the MSIRI primarily serves the needs of the staff but its facilities are also available to estate personnel, producers and any bonafide student or researcher. Since the inception of the Institute in 1953 it has grown from a nucleus of publications on sugar cane agronomy and sugar manufacture into an extensive collection of journals, reports and books covering a wide range of biological and agricultural sciences. Online access and full texts that are available on CD-ROMs supplement the information resources.

Research Objectives

The Research and Development Programme of the MSIRI is prepared through direct discussions with the stakeholders and at the level of Research Advisory sub-committees on Agronomy, Biology and Sugar Technology and finally elaborated by the Research Advisory Committee, before being formally adopted by the MSIRI Board. Organizations involved in the preparation of the R & D programme of the Institute comprise the Chamber of Agriculture, the Mauritius Sugar Authority, the University of Mauritius, the Ministry of Agro-industry and Fisheries, and the local Sugar Technologists' Association.

The broad spheres in which the MSIRI is active comprise the growing of sugar cane and its milling, use of sugar cane co-products and the growing of foodcrops in association with sugar cane. Over the years, the MSIRI has developed high-yielding sugar cane varieties adapted to the different agro-climatic zones of Mauritius, provided guidance on appropriate measures to control pests, diseases and weeds, developed the aerial application of chemical ripeners, issued recommendations on rational use of fertilizers, prepared soil maps and land suitability maps, and provided the technology that enabled the efficient production of potato, maize, groundnut and tomato in sugar cane lands. Recently palm species have been recommended for areas marginal for cane production.

The main themes of the R & D Programme include crop improvement, crop protection, biotechnology, crop management, crop mechanization, environment and natural resource management, crop diversification and post-harvest technology, information technology, economics and technology transfer, sugar technology and sugar engineering.

The nine corporate goals of the Institute are as follows: crop productivity, sustainable production systems, sugar technology and engineering, interaction with users, developing human resources, facilities and equipment, administration, public awareness and a centre of excellence. Output and performance indicators are included as a means to evaluate progress achieved towards these goals.

The MSIRI has pursued the objectives of the Sugar Sector Strategic Plan 2001-2005, proposed by the Government in June 2001, with the implementation of research and development projects inter alia in the spheres of crop improvement, mechanization, irrigation, derocking and use of co-products aimed at promoting the competitiveness of the industry through increased productivity and reduced cost of production.

Government has published in September 2005 a Road-map for the Mauritius Sugar Cane Industry for the 21st century to which the MSIRI is a party and has a prominent role in research, development and technology transfer.

The MSIRI will implement the priorities established in its Research and Development Plan 2005-2009 which are in line with those of the Multi-Annual Adaptation Strategy - Action Plan 2006-2015 of the Government of Mauritius regarding reforms in the sugar cane industry. Research will concentrate on areas for which there is scope for substantial material gain, namely crop improvement, biotechnology, co-products, biomass utilization/valorization while traditional areas such as agronomy, crop protection and technology transfer will be consolidated to ensure that acquired gains are fully exploited. Some non-sugar crops, such as palms and fruits like pitaya, will be promoted for marginal land on which sugar cane cultivation is not likely to be pursued with the reduction in sugar price associated with the reform of the sugar regime of the European Union. The ultimate objective will be to transform the industry from a single commodity to one of renewable biomass that would be viable and sustainable.

INTRODUCTION

The Serials in the MSIRI Library (1953-2005) is the second edition of our catalogue of serials holdings.

It provides an update of the first edition, entitled MSIRIS: a catalogue of serials in the MSIRI Library<sup>1</sup> which was compiled in 1994 with the objective of producing a basis for a union catalogue of serials for Mauritius.

The AGRIS: Subject Categories<sup>2</sup> and the AGLINET Union List of Serials<sup>3</sup> were used as reference sources. As for the previous edition, the database is established using the CDS/ISIS software from UNESCO. It constitutes a compilation of the serials collection of the MSIRI Library to 2005.

The International Serials Data System (ISDS)<sup>4</sup> was used for the bibliographic description, the country, language and frequency codes. The subject content of the serials was indexed using the CABI Thesaurus<sup>5</sup>.

A catalogue of serials in the MSIRI Library will facilitate access to information from the collection of the Mauritius Sugar Industry Research Institute since 1953. Thus resource sharing will be encouraged. The catalogue is also available in PDF format on our website (<http://webmsiri.intnet.mu>)
